Grayling Bank Readies Checks For Christmas

The Grayling State Bank is readying checks for distribution this week to the 95 members of its second Christmas Club, vice president John Aler has announced. A total payment of just under $7,000 will be made. This is just about double the first year's club of 43 members and about $3,000 total payment.

Each member of this year's club will receive nearly $74.00 on the average which will boost the area's economy greatly. Though much of the total payment goes for Christmas purchases, about one-third is shifted to permanent savings with lesser amounts going for insurance, premiums, axes, mortgage payments, household furnishings, year-end bills, education and for miscellaneous purposes.

The national pay-out on Christmas Clubs will exceed a billion dollars for the sixth year. Of 7,000 banks and savings institutions which have clubs, 157 have Christmas savings of more than one million dollars. The national average for thirteen million savers amounts to $93.73. Mr. Aler stated that he hoped many more people of Grayling and Crawford County will become members of the 1958 Christmas Club and in so doing assure themselves of a paid-up Christmas.

At the next meeting of the Frederic Parent-Teachers Association to be held at the Frederic School on December 8th, resolutions will be passed out to those attending for the study in schools in Michigan.

The program will be carried out state-wide with the many answers to be tabulated later at Lansing. This program will give an idea of what the citizens of the state feel about the schools. The opinions aired need not be signed by those filling them out.

The questions on the blanks are answered simply by checking the square which most closely matches the opinion of the respondent. It is out. Teacher standards, teacher salary, money raising plans for financing and many, many other pertinent questions are asked.

MIDWEST SKI CAPITOL

Michigan's 69 Ski Centers Gear For Big Winter Season

Michigan's winter resort areas are gearing for their biggest winter sports season in the state's travel history. For in six short years this Great Lakes vacation state has become the ski capital of the Midwest.

And this winter Michigan will have 69 organized winter sports centers in operation—more than any state east of the Rockies, according to the Michigan Tourist Council.

Six new centers will open for the first time this winter, while other resorts will offer skiing enthusiasts and improved facilities, said Robert J. Furlong, Council executive secretary.

"Snow-making machines will be in operation at nine of the ski areas, he said, assuring a longer skiing season and more reliable conditions in marginal snowfall areas."

"We expect at least 150,000 skiers to turn out for the 1958-59 season," Furlong said. "They will average three ski trips each and spend some $14 million in the process."

Interest in Michigan skiing has been booming since 1953 when there were 38 ski centers in the state. Today, some 65,000 skiers, this year ski resorts will dot the map from the Copper Country of the upper peninsula to Kalamazoo and Pontiac in southern lower Michigan.

As in previous years there will be beautiful hand-made Christmas gifts for sale as well as attractively packaged Christmas cookies and candies. Prices will range from 50c to $1.00.

Come to Tuesday for a cup of tea and a visit with friends while doing some of your hard-to-find Christmas shopping.

An attractive door prize will be drawn for a 5 o'clock dinner. Not to be drawn in the drawing is order to win, as names will be registered at the door.

YOUTHFUL VANDALS DESTROY PROPERTY

There were 11 windows broken in the Grayling Public school building Sunday night, November 16th, according to Joseph Stripe, school superintendent. The cost of replacing these windows came to $34.00 each or $373.00, with $44.00 labor for installing, making a total to the taxpayers of Grayling of $104.39.

The City Police have investigated the breakage, the case has been turned over to the State Police and it is expected that action will be taken soon.

Since July a total of nearly 30 windows have been broken in the St. Mary's school and church, and a large picture window in the N. P. Olson home and a window in the Emil Giegling residence were also shattered as well as garage windows at the A. J. Nelson residence.

In addition to the many windows, nearly 55 street lights have been broken.

Grayling City Police have apprehended three boys, ages 12, 12 and 15 who admitted breaking the windows at the two schools and at the Olson and Nelson residences. One of the three with another boy of 13 were responsible for breaking the streetlights. It is estimated that the total bill for replacement of all of the broken windows and streetlights will run well over $350.00.

Grayling Merchants Offering Real Savings On Items For Yule Gifts

Grayling's third annual Santa Claus Dollar Days will take place this Friday and Saturday, November 28th and 29th. With most of the city's merchants banding together to offer real savings on items for Christmas giving or for winter use, a large crowd of shoppers is expected in Grayling this weekend.

The streets of Grayling are gayly decorated in the Christmas motif by the City of Grayling and the stores of the city are also merry in the Yuletide lights and cheerful decorations.

The two day sale is the result of a promotion by the Grayling Business Association which was formed from the Retail Round Table sponsored by the Crawford County Chamber of Commerce with Howard Somers of Central Michigan College as the instructor. Mr. Somers will be back in Grayling in January to aid those merchants taking the course in further promotions which should bring to Grayling an increase in retail sales.

The merchants co-operating in the sale have taken a two page advertisement in this week's Crawford County Avalanche (pages 2 and 3). Readers are urged to study the advertisements on the two pages as many outstanding values are offered, not only for Christmas giving but for use during the winter.

This sale is expected to be repeated each year as the opening of the pre-Christmas season in Grayling. Other promotions of a similar nature will probably be staged by the Grayling Business Association during the coming year.

County Schools To Reopen On Monday

All of the schools in Crawford County will be closed Thanksgiving Day and Friday, according to information furnished by the five schools, Grayling Public, Frederic Community, Beaver Creek, St. Mary's and Feldhauser. They will reopen as usual on Monday, December 1st.

Three Elk Reported In Crawford County

Three elk have been reported in Crawford County almost daily for the past several days to Conservation officers by hunters. A cow has been reported in the Wakeley Bridge area and a bull and a cow along the Lewiston grade near the fire tower.

Hunters are warned that elk are not legal game and their much greater size instantly lets the hunter know that they are not deer.

1958 CHRISTMAS SEAL SALE UNDERWAY

First contributions in the 1958 Christmas Seal sale last week were received by the Michigan Tuberculosis Association from residents of Grayling.

"Christmas Seal funds are working to increase the effectiveness of Michigan's TB control program," J. Irvin Nichols, executive secretary of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association, said. "The more than 5,000 new TB cases reported annually in the state are proof that many loopholes still need to be plugged."

He called on local residents to mail their Christmas Seal contributions early. The first 10 residents of Grayling to mail their Christmas Seal gifts this year were: Mrs. Robert W. Strong, Box 490; Arnold Hubbell, 404 Date Street; C. File, 306 Peninsular Avenue; Sam Gust, 205 Alger Street; Franklin T. Hill, Star Street; Miss Frances May, 305 Park Street; Miss Margaret Nielsen, 308 Ionia Street; Mrs. H. J. Shaw, Lake Margaret; and Leota B. Whipple, 408 Spruce Street.

SPECIAL SERVICES TO BE HELD

Special religious services will be held at Grayling's Free Methodist Church, Dec. 1 through 14. It is hoped that these meetings will result in a better understanding of the importance of spiritual matter and the necessity of maintaining a proper relationship with God.

Services will be held each evening at 7:30 except Saturday evening. The pastor, Charles Allen, will be the speaker. The public is given a cordial invitation to attend.

Vikings Practice With Harrison

The Grayling High Vikings continuing their pre-season workouts meet the powerful Harrison Hornets in a practice game at Grayling High gym this Tuesday.

The Hornets under Coach Gene Harnett are odds on favorites to repeat this year as champions of the Tomahawk Conference. They are a myriad of returning letter men, the Harrison team is expected to continue their stranglehold in their league in which they have won the championship every year but one in the past decade. That year they finished second. They are capable of giving the Vikings a real rugged workout session.

Grayling will open their regular season on December 5th when they entertain the Gaylord Blue Devils here in a Northern Class C Conference fray. Varsity Coach Bruce Smith has a nucleus of 15 letter winners around which to build this year's varsity squad. Four of the letter winners were last year regular starters. Only forward Don Roberts, now at Northern Michigan College at Marquette, will be missing from last year's starting five.

Expected to get the nod at forward this year will be Roger Hatfield and Frank Gross with Jack Harnett, center, and Oscar Forning at a guard. Others on the squad who will battle for the fifth position are: Gary Springs, Dave Wyman and Jim Kessler. Others who have moved up from last year's layaway squad and who will probably see action during the season are: Curt Smith, Bill Heath, Dick MacLeod and Don Lester.

ATTENTION KIDS... PARENTS TOO!

Santa Claus was in the Avalanches office today and asked us to remind you to sign your last name as well as your first when you mail your letter to him at his mail box on Michigan Ave., in downtown Grayling.

He would appreciate it too if you or your mother or dad would put your address on your letter. That way he can answer you right away. Of course, Santa knows where every boy and girl lives but when it gets this time of the year, he is ever so busy and it takes valuable time for him to remember your last name and where you live. If you write it down for him, it will give him extra time to sort everything in in readiness for Christmas Eve and his big delivery job.

State G. O. P. To Start 1959 With Only Control of Senate Left of Power

REPUBLICANS WILL START the 1959 legislative session stripped of all but a token of the power they held in state government a decade ago.
They still control the Senate, 22 to 12, but the House is evenly divided at 55 - 55 and all the other state offices are held by Democrats.

The lack of a majority by either party means there is a question about which party will supply the presiding officer and which party shall be represented as speaker of House committees. There are a number of proposed solutions for the problem, but a satisfactory answer has yet to be decided upon.

Both parties shudder at the thought of the 1959 legislative session and the struggle for answers to accumulated fiscal and social problems.

As one observer stated it, the ancient rule of government by compromise will get a lot of practice.

The full impact of the House split is not yet known. It will could mean new faces among legislative employees and possibly changed policies. It will certainly mean a harder Democratic voice in committees and on the floor of the House.

Republican caucuses will not necessarily arrive at the final answer on major issues now, even if party leaders can hold their votes on the same side.

Democrats, who for years have come up with their own decisions, knowing they would be defeated on a final vote, now can produce a voting majority, so they anxiously shoulder some of the burden of the policies of the House.

Williams' message to the Legislature this January with great anticipation. Republicans privately wonder whether his demands will change their tenor now that there is a chance the Legislature will be stalled until they are met, and that more of them might be approved.

In the past, Republicans say the strategy worked this way: Williams would make demands that he and other Democrats knew the state could not afford without reversing policies that existed for decades.

When Republicans controlling the legislature balked, he would take to the campaign trails charging they were hurting the cause of mental health, public health, and other vital state services.

Legislators, seeing merit in some of Williams' ideas, sometimes would go part of the way. The Democratic charge then would be that it was too little or it came too late, or that even if the legislature did put a program into action, it was a Democratic idea.

SPECULATION IS RIFE, as the political writers say, about Williams' future after defeating Republican Candidate Paul D. Bagwell by 143,000 votes Nov. 4 and running fifth on his own ticket.

Some are writing Williams off the Democratic slate in 1960 when delegates gather to pick a national ticket.

Williams defeated the late Albert E. Cobo two years ago by 280,000 votes and Democrats were predicting gains up to 450,000 this year.

They reason that had he won by an overwhelming vote, national party leaders couldn't ignore him despite their apprehension about his labor organization ties.

Now, some observers are predicting the governor will try for U. S. Senator Patrick V. McNamara's seat in 1960.

This would complete the cycle started four years ago when Democratic strategists were forced to accept McNamara when their No. 1 comeback candidate was former Senator Blair Moody who died before the election.

Williams said he was more happy at the increases in Democratic hold offices this year than he was disappointed at the lesser majority he, himself, achieved.

He said he was happy that Lt. Gov. Philip A. Hart defeated the incumbent Republican Senator Charles E. Potter; that more Democratic house members were elected and other victories scored.

But, out of the post-election as a new and stronger factor-melee emerged Secretary of State James M. Hare, a former professor, who led the Democratic ticket.

Republicans may at first have others rode into office on Williams' coattails four years ago. Now, with Hare stepping up, there is a chance the party will have to revamp its long-term plans to take into consideration his new status.

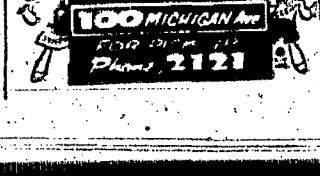

Williams, who has not always agreed with party policy, has more weight to support his position within the closely knit circle of Democratic high command.

The Great American Tragedy . . .

The great American tragedy lies in our failure to see the signs of moral decay that surround us.

Thus writes Dr. Louis Finkelstein, distinguished scholar and theologian, in the September issue of Forum magazine. These signs, he adds, "are apparent in the vulgar ostentation all around us, in the sexual laxity revealed by the Kinsey studies, in the demoralization of American captives in the Korean war, in the widespread defiance of law. The signs are apparent in our general toleration of wrongdoing, which is itself an evil and corrupting force."

Dr. Finkelstein believes that it is the primary responsibility of the businessman to "put ethics on the agenda." The businessman, in his view, is necessarily the leading citizen in an industrial society. His morals and attitudes pervade our life. He must have values in life "above profit or economic security."

Can the spread of moral dry rot be stopped and the sorry trend reversed? No greater, more far-reaching question faces us today. And businessman alone, important as his role is, cannot provide the whole answer. The disease is found in labor, government, everywhere. And it is deadly.

No Cause For Cheers . . .

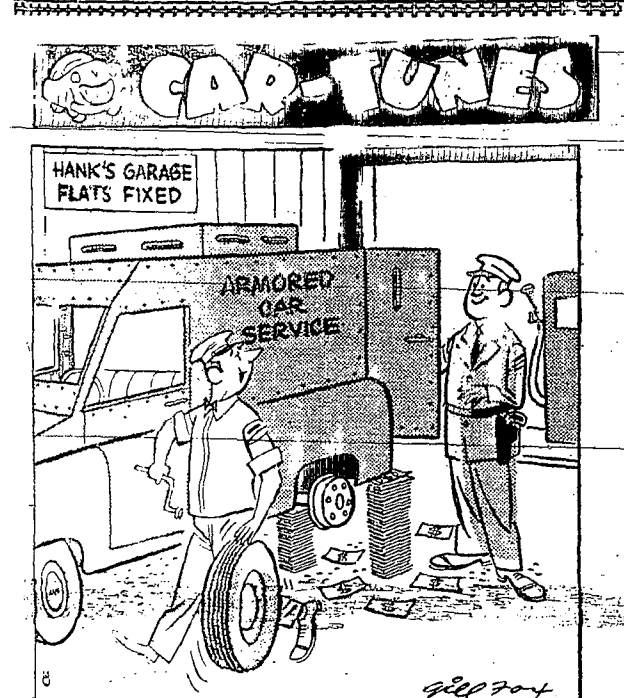

Reports now indicate that this year's federal deficit will probably be well below the $12 billion figure that was forecast until recently. The reason, however, isn't that government spending is declining. It is, instead, that the upturn in business activity and personal incomes are raising tax revenues.

A reduced deficit will be good news. But it shouldn't lead to any cheering. At best, the government will go into the hole by billions. That means more national debt. That means more danger of inflation. That means ever-poorer chances for tax reduction.

If the next Congress continues the spending spree of its predecessors, we'll keep right on moving toward a further debased currency and ultimate national bankruptcy. It's happened all over the world. It can happen here.

More Fun At Thanksgiving . . .

In the old days, the homemaker's preparation for

THANKSGIVING AT GRAYLING

Thanksgiving amounted to a huge task. Chores often started weeks ahead of time. Some recipes took days to prepare. Gathering the food for Thanksgiving dinner meant a long tour of various shops.

But now, as a house organ issued by First National Stores points out, "The modern 'Cook of the Day' can have a complete Thanksgiving dinner ready in a matter of a few hours. Scientific improvements in the food itself and in packaging have made cooking so easy, beyond any dream of generations past."

Anyone who's ever been in a modern American food market can attest to that. Everything is ready-to-hand—plainly marked as to price, weight and quality, and attractively packaged. And an ever-lengthening list of foods now come in a ready-for-the-pan or ready-to-eat form.

As the First National's magazine says: "Food shopping for Holiday time or any time is faster, pleasanter, cleaner than in the old days, which, of course, was fun with the family hustling around doing all the preparation work. But today it's even more so because pre-holiday preparations leave more time for the recreation that goes with Thanksgiving."

The lid was officially pried off the 1935-36 basketball season Friday night when the Alumni defeated the high school squad 26 to 25. As rule Alumni teams are expected to win over high schools. Therefore it was a moral victory for the green-clad team that they came so close to whipping the Alumni. In the last five seconds of play the high school unloaded a fast break that completely caught the Alumni off-guard, and amidst the excitement of the play the referee's whistle calling for an out of bounds play was not heard and the winning point was made but did not count.

Nearly 50,000 Montana grayling have been brought to fingerling size at Wolf Lake State fish hatchery near Kalama for experimental planting in selected streams. A number of experimental plantings have been made by the Department of Conservation during the past two years in an effort to reestablish the grayling species in the state. The Montana grayling and the Michigan grayling are practically identical. So far check-up work by Institute for Fisheries Research men have indicated that they will survive and grow when introduced into favorable streams, but continued study is to be made to ascertain whether the species will increase and propagate sufficiently to justify further propagation work.

Buildings Moved To Camp Grayling

Twenty seven pre-fabricated metal buildings, turned over to the state at Detroit by the federal government, have been moved to Camp Grayling, according to the Quartermaster's General's Office. The barracks - type structures were located on a former anti-aircraft artillery gun site which the active Army is turning back to its owner. The Quartermaster General as yet hasn't determined what use will be made of the buildings. The barracks were torn down by a detail of men called to actual state duty from among members of the 227th Mst Bn (NIKE), Detroit. Supervising the dismantling at the Detroit gun site was Capt. Harold R. Clingensmith, of the Quartermaster General's Office.

The dismantled buildings were trucked to Camp Grayling where plywood portions, plywood flooring, insulation, wallboard and electrical and plumbing fixtures have been stored indoors, and the metal parts outdoors.
